DR. BROWN'S SERMON

Closing His Engagement at the First Presbyterian Church.

POSTMASTER FIELD TALKS ON LOVE

Services in Memory of Rev. J. R. Castle at the First Baptist Church. Aiding a Church Fund—Other Religious News.

Rev. Francis Brown, Ph. D., D. D., of Union Theological Seminary, New York, closed his engagement yesterday at the First Presbyterian Church. In the morning he preached from II St. Peter: 10, 11, on making one's calling and election sure. The sermon was one of exceptional interest, and all through it were scattered sentences and expressions which the mind singled out and dwelt upon as particularly direct, concise and comprehensive.

"There is," said the speaker, "a Divine indiscriminateness about the offer of salvation. The Bible is many sided, and every one can come into contact with its readers in many different places; one man being touched by something in Genesis, another by a passage in Revelations. One, his truth teaches at a point where sin makes his heart sick. Another at the point where aspiration reaches upward. There is a wonderful versatility in the Divine approach and adaptability to details in the Divine commands. No man's text can hinder to follow exactly in the footprints of another. Each has allotted to him some special service. The book addresses itself equally to the genius and to the dullard and to all, it shows that their share in Christ's kingdom depends upon character. The Divine control gains entrance for us into the eternal kingdom, not regardless of character, but directly and primarily through character. Given the heavenly character and heaven follows as a thing of course. We have no share in the kingdom from mere kindness of its Lord. Jesus did not die to throw open the gates of paradise to a deserving rabble."

THE BIBLE IS A JUDGE.

"God's aim is to make us righteous. It would not be enough if God were merely wise or merely affectionate, if there were not a strong, pure, holy character as our standard. There is a depth of meaning in the phrase, 'to be fit for Heaven.' The apostolic mind was clear enough on the things demanded of the believer. 'If ye do these things ye shall never stumble.' The text is the climax of an argument; it is the last joint fitted to the lever's end, giving it sweep enough to lift the wheel to the highest level.

"Mediocrity in character is not contemplated by the Scriptures. No other book so clearly judges man, no other book expects so much of him; it is a judge condemning, and yet a preacher enjoining the highest virtue. It is not 'Do as well as you can, but 'Be perfect.' There is no entrance save the one; there is no slackening. The best life is the only life to be passed. Men (and women especially) are prone to accept substitutes—to make things do, but in the court of Scripture nothing will 'do' but righteousness."

Dr. Brown pointed out that cherishing this high aim ensured safety; arguing of the inconsistency of exercising prudence in temporal things, and displaying indifference as to eternity; and that it insured living a lofty plane, a rich personal experience; a life of usefulness here, and hereafter no "abundant entrance" into the Heavenly Kingdom.

IN HEMORY OF REV. DR. J. R. CASTLE

Solemn Commemorative Services Held at the First Baptist Church.

Every seat in the First Baptist Church, on West Philadelphia, Thirty-ninth and Chestnut streets, was occupied last evening by the congregation that attended the solemn service in memory of Rev. John Harvard Castle, D. D., pastor of that church from March 16, 1879, to January 31, 1873. The church, where Dr. Castle when called on, when taken ill was supplying the pulpit for Rev. John Peddle, D. D., joined the First Church, of West Philadelphia, in the service, and William Castle, a brother of the deceased minister, was also present. A handsome crayon portrait of Dr. Castle, tastefully draped with black, occupied a prominent place in the chancel where he was so often seen in life.

Rev. Joseph M. Dixon, pastor of the church, conducted the opening services and made the introductory address, in which he remarked that his prevailing feeling at the moment was one of loneliness. Death had not been a stranger to that congregation in the past twelve months, so many of their members had been called away, and most keenly felt among those bereavements must be that in which its former pastor, called to mourn for its former pastor. Colonel William H. Harrison, one of the deacons of the church, read a series of resolutions expressing high appreciation of the services and Christian character of Dr. Castle, and directing that the proceedings of the meeting be entered among the archives of the church, and a memorial tablet to Dr. Castle be put up in the church.

Deacon Charles J.B. Keen was the first speaker. He referred to the long and close friendship of Dr. Castle, of whose character and labors he spoke in the highest terms. Under his administration, he said, the church increased from a membership of 71 to 388, the Sunday school from 212 to 512, and the contributions from $1,000 to $8,000 in one department, and in another from $2,511 to $6,911.

Rev. C. C. Hilting, D. D., alluded feelingly to his long association with Dr. Castle, whom he had known as a boy, with whom he had attended Sunday school, whose memories he had been for a while assistant in the ministry, and with whom he had been thrown in the denominational work in which Dr. Castle had served the church so faithfully and efficiently. Rev. Dr. J. Wayland said that Dr. Castle was the first person he ever heard suggest the idea of praying for an editor. He spoke of the interest taken by the deceased in the religious and denominational press, of his breadth of views and sympathetic nature, of his services to the church, both in this country and in Canada, and of the surprise of Lord Houghton, on seeing the Jarvis Street Baptist Church, in Toronto, as the prosperity of those whom he called "these dissenters."

Rev. Dr. George Dana Boardman, of the First Church, made the closing address, at once scholarly and eloquent, and a noble tribute to the dead pastor, while breathing a spirit of fervent piety. Miss Clara McC. Fielding sang "Asleep in Jesus," as a solo, and the choir rendered an anthem and other appropriate selections with fine effect.

POSTMASTER FIELD ON LOVE.

He Addresses the Scholars of Memorial Baptist Sunday School.

Yesterday was the closing day for the summer term of the Sunday school of Memorial Baptist Church, Broad and Master streets, and the rooms were crowded at the afternoon session by the scholars and visitors to witness the long programme of service that had been prepared. After the responsive reading by superintendent and school, the kindergarten and primary departments gave an interesting concert exercise, which was a feature of the service. There was also a concert exercise of the tenth from memory by the intermediate department.

An address by Postmaster John Field virtually concluded the service. He took for his theme the value of love, viewing it in the light of the many results its true expression calls forth in human nature. He illustrated the topic he referred to the attributes of Daniel in this respect: "You separate Sunday," he said, "and soon your numbers will be scattered along the numbers of the week, through the country. You will find a thousand and one temptations beaten your path wherever you go. Carry your principles with you. Remember always that an all-seeing eye is upon you, although away from your superintendent and teachers.

"A short while ago two young men, nicely dressed, courteous and boasting a supposed reliable card of introduction, asked permission to go through my place of business. I gladly complied. They forgot about the skylight in the fifth floor, and while they were going along on the floor below an employee looked down through this skylight upon the two young visitors. While looking he saw them transact several things into their pockets. It was the eye opener to me when I saw it, as it was to me, for I could see our every action." Mr. Field concluded his address with a reference to the order of men that the world needs; honest, truthful, industrious and those that stand by right for the right.

The Sunday school has sixty teachers and an average attendance of 300 scholars. It will open again on September 1.

HONOR TO FRANCIS MAKEMIE.

The First Presbyterian Minister Who Set Foot in America.

HALTIMORE, June 29.—The Presbyterian Memorial Church, erected at Snow Hill, Md., in honor of Rev. Francis Makemie, the first Presbyterian preacher to come to America, was dedicated to-day. The site is upon the site of the first Presbyterian church in America, and was built by Rev. Mr. Makemie about 1695. A few miles north of Snow Hill at Rehoboth is another Presbyterian Church erected by Mr. Makemie about the same time, and the church at Princess Anne, near Snow Hill, is almost equally as ancient. The church dedicated to-day is the third upon the original site. The cost of the building is about $30,000.

Among the contributions were Robert Garrett, ex-President of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; Geo. W. Childs, Philadelphia; Chas. A. Dana, and Robert Bonner, of New York; Rev. Dr. Geo. L. Brown, of Baltimore; the late Edward S. Handy of Baltimore, and many others. The most interesting contributor, however, was Lord Lovelace, of London, whose father, the late John Richardson, a wealthy Philadelphian, married Ada Byron Noel, Baroness Wentworth, who presided over Lady Wallingham, who presided over Lady Wallingham, the Oby lawyer and politician, who became so conspicuous during the Civil War.

TALKING TO THE VETERANS.

Rev. Dr. Dager Preaches to E. D. Baker Post at Holy Trinity.

Over one hundred members of the E. D. Baker Post, No. 8, G. A. R., attended Holy Trinity Reformed Episcopal Church, Twelfth and Oxford streets, last night, when Dr. F. E. Dager drew a lesson for the veterans from the 11 Chronicles, 28:30: "And on the fourth day they assembled themselves in the valley of Berachah."

From that assembling of the children of Israel to give praise to God for victory in battle, Dr. Dager drew a parallel of the American boys assembled to give praise to God for the blessings of the free institutions of this country. The first point was that every blessing must be obtained through battle. The government of America was the result of the Revolutionary strife.

Every blessing must be obtained through battle, was the second point, to illustrate which the late rebellion was instanced. The transition of these blessing to posterity was the third point. Under this head the occasion was embraced to say a word about the preparation of the Baker Band, and the use of the Bible in public schools. A soothing colonic was administered to what was called an attempt to introduce un-American institutions. The sermon was prettily decorated with palms and flowering yucca.

AIDING A CHURCH FUND.

Special Services in the First African Presbyterian Church.

A special service was held in Magnolia Hall, Sixteenth and Lombard streets, yesterday morning, in behalf of the Church Fund of the First African Presbyterian Church. The pastor reported the work of raising the mortgage a going on encouragingly, with every prospect of being able to enter the new edifice during the coming winter.

Rev. M. W. Rice being unable to preach, as promised, the pastor, Rev. Thomas Amos, gave a helpful and encouraging discourse.

This church is one of the unfortunates that have struggled with an unequipped plant. During the lifetime of Elder Jacob C. White, a man of great piety and force of character, the congregation was held together and worked hard to secure a location and situated in an undesirable locality, the congregation grew rapidly under the pastorate of Rev. Thomas Amos has been in charge the work has prospered and the indications are that the people is that the church will once more take her place among the leading congregations of the city.

Mr. Amos is quite a young man, but a successful pastor and an earnest worker in all reforms.

Dr. Roberts on Census Taking.

Rev. William Dayton Roberts preached last evening at the Temple Presbyterian Church, Franklin and Thompson streets, on the subject "Taking the Census," selecting his text from Gen. 32, ch. 27: "And He said unto Him what is thy name?" After reviewing the historical development of the idea of counting the people, he evolved from his idea that it was a reminder of God's last judgment. The questionings that would apply to the moral nature of man were happily developed in the sermon. It dwelt upon the importance of a name, as proven by the days when name meant a great deal more than the common idea of a name signifies now.

SERMONS TO STUDENTS.

The commencement exercises at the University of Virginia began with a sermon by Rev. Moses D. Hoge, of Richmond, Va.

The baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of Girard College was preached in the Baptist Church by President A. W. Small, Ph.D., from Ecclesiastes 7:2.

The baccalaureate sermon at Middlebury College was preached by President Ezra Benjamin Fenn, Saturday, till 19: "For the earnest expectation of the Creation waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God."

The baccalaureate sermon before the graduating class of Williams College was preached to the Congregational Church by President Mark Hopkins, D.D., Saturday, at 4 P. M. "And he went out not knowing whither he went."

Pigeon Flying Comp.

The birds of the Hub Club, Boston, were liberated in their first long race of the season yesterday. The start was in Hartford, Conn., and the weather being unfavorable the birds were not let go. The entries were: Ellis Bishop, Fellows, 2; George Gould, of Newtonville, 7 (two of them lost); Chas. Kusmann, Newtonville, 5; Mills, 3; Henry Wagner, of Roslindale, 7. The club will be entered for the Fall pigeons, N. Y. The best time to each loft so far reported was: Bishop, 363 at 2.30 P. M. distance, 251.3 miles; average speed, 1,005 yards per minute. Kusmann, 160 at 3.15 P. M.; distance, about 252.5 miles; average speed, 998 yards per minute. The next journey will be next Saturday or Sunday from Binghamton.

The birds of Theodore P. Green, of Woodbury, N. J., that begin their journey on the second this week, ended training with a fly from Washington, D.C., last Saturday. The start was by Mr. T. B. Joslin at 7.40 A. M. The birds were liberated together at 10.30 A. M., the distance, 120 miles, having been flown in 2 hours 50 minutes. The average speed was about 1,111 yards per minute. The birds from the Bridgeport and shipped to-day for their journey from 200 miles in a bee line speed.

Other birds to be shipped to-day are those of the Rogers, Twining and Valvalaring, of Yardley, Pa., to be flown for distance in the day from 450 miles.

The birds of Messrs. Hansberger and Donegre, of Chestnut Hill, Pa., were liberated at Washington at 11 A. M. yesterday. Of 7 entered, 5 arrived in Darby. No report was rendered at evening, but whether the wait of the telegraph office or because there were no returns remains to be found out.

A Dangerous Plaything.

John Chilla, 13-years-old, of No. 4 Lincoln avenue, had both feet injured by the explosion of a cartridge with which he was playing at Fallon and Catharine streets. The lad was taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital and subsequently sent home.

Rochester's Errors Were Costly.

SPECIAL TO THE INQUIRER.

ST. LOUIS, June 29.—Decidedly better fielding and more opportune hitting on the part of St. Louis won to-day's game from Rochester. The errors of the latter were costly, coming at times when St. Louis ran bases with boldness. A hot hit ball from Bowman's bat broke the third finger of Callihan's pitching hand in the fourth inning and Blaylock took his place. The latter was his very hard. Attendance, 3,000. Score:

The Athletics Favored by Rain.

TOLEDO, June 29.—The game between Toledo and the Athletics was stopped at the end of the fourth inning by rain, when the score stood 1 to 1 in favor of Toledo.

Columbus Had Her Own.

COLUMBUS, O., June 29.—The Columbus-Syracuse game was stopped by rain during the third inning. Columbus had one run, Syracuse nothing. It will be played off to-morrow.

ATLANTIC ASSOCIATION.

Baltimore Wins Through Hartford's Stupid Playing and Bad Fielding.

BALTIMORE, June 29.—Bad fielding and stupid playing lost Hartford the game to-day, while Baltimore added another link in the seventh Moore hit the ball to deep centre field, which looked like a home run, but Long ran like a deer and caught the ball with one hand. At the close of the inning Manager Barnie and Catcher Tate were fined $50 by the county authorities charged with "playing ball on Sunday." They were also arrested at the second inning. In both instances they were released on bail of $500 each to appear before the county authorities during the coming week. Attendance, 4,000. Score:

Baltimore.	1	0	1	1	5	1	0	0	0	=9—12

Washington, 9; Worcester, 7.

WASHINGTON, June 29.—At the close of the base ball game to-day at Atlantida Driving Park Burkett, the secretary of the Washington Club, was arrested and sentenced by a justice of the peace of Alexandria county to pay a fine of $5 and costs for each man taking part in the game. This will probably result in breaking up Sunday games in this vicinity.

The home club won the game in the fifth inning when they hit Stafford, the Worcester pitcher, for three singles, a double, three triples and a home run, scoring eight runs. Score:

Washington	0	0	0	0	1	0	0	8	0	=9

Brooklyn Was Unable to Hit Either of Louisville's Pitchers.

SPECIAL TO THE INQUIRER.

LOUISVILLE, June 29.—Louisville and Brooklyn played to-day in about the most unfavorable weather ever known here for base ball. Brooklyn proved an easy victim. Attendance, 1,500. Der for Brooklyn and Menkie, Ehret and Weckbecker were the batteries. Ehret took Menkie's place at the end of the seventh. McCullough was in his freely, while the visitors were unable to hit either of Louisville's pitchers, making no hit off Ehret. Attendance, 2,465.

Brooklyn Was Unable to Hit Either of Louisville's Pitchers.

SPECIAL TO THE INQUIRER.

LOUISVILLE, June 29.—Louisville and Brooklyn played to-day in about the most unfavorable weather ever known here for base ball. Brooklyn proved an easy victim. Der for Brooklyn and Menkie, Ehret and Weckbecker were the batteries. Ehret took Menkie's place at the end of the seventh. McCullough was in his freely, while the visitors were unable to hit either of Louisville's pitchers, making no hit off Ehret. Attendance, 2,465.
